When visiting a trade fair most people are looking for what's new, innovative or the latest in trends and BaselWorld is no exception. I think next time I'll record "so what's new" to save my voice a little! So just what is new? Well, there are some new electronic machines from one of our USA suppliers, who seem to have solved the problem that many magnetic finishers have of heating the water (no it's not a refrigerator); Our British Rolling Mill Manufacturer has ventured into other forming tools (and at a surprisingly good price) and of course there is a collection of improved tools from a number of the Watch Tools suppliers including an oversized watch case opener for those new trendy oversize watches.

We will be working very hard to bring you as many of the innovative new tools as possible in time for the JAA International Jewellery Fair in Sydney in just a few months' time.

For me the stand out new machine came from an old German manufacturer, Schultheiss, who released their new Vacuum Pressure Casting Machine for Goldsmiths Studios and small Manufacturers. The table top machine provides a combination of features that in the past have only been available in large production equipment! It is compact, will handle Gold, Silver Palladium Alloys, and Platinum, and can have flask vibration technology included if desired and all at a price that is below that of its larger counterparts. Keep an eye out for the Shcultheiss VPC 040!

Best Regards, Ian Martin
