Just a few years in the past, OK maybe a bit more than a few years, Blinmans Jewellery Directory was the 'must have' industry specific directory. I'm not sure what happened but Blinmans disappeared and two others emerged, Suppliers Directory - A Comprehensive Directory of Australian Jewellery Suppliers and Jewellery World Jewellers Guide - The Industry Source Book. These two between them provide a wealth of information and being produced by separate companies keeps advertising rates competitive (still dam expensive in my opinion, but...). Now it seems Blinmans is set to be re-released "The Blinmans search engine will be online in July" (advertised p32 Jewellers Trade June 2010). While the cover is reported to be keeping the original look, the book itself is to be "Australia Wide Trade Suppliers Information" in lieu of the state format of the original and further claims that "every buyer gets a Blinmans" and "everyone can join the Blinmans just like the old days". If this all works out for Blinmans, I guess I'll have to find more space on the bookshelf (and maybe advertising in all three will be even more competitive) good luck Blinmans.
Regards, Ian Martin
